The anniversary services of Grace Methodist church, Lacombe, will be held on Sunday, October 26. Rev. G. W. Kerby, D.D., of Calgary, will occupy the pulpit at both services. On Monday, October 27, anniversary dinner will be served in the new block, Dolman street, from 6 to 8 p.m., followed by a grand concert in the church at 8 p.m.

Mr. C. Munro recently offered the Calgary Y.M.C.A. a large lot at Gull Lake on condition that a summer cottage be built on it before June next. The gift has been accepted and the conditions will be complied with.

Bentley, as is becoming under the exceptional circumstances, will on Monday hold the biggest Thanksgiving festival in its history. Several prominent men are expected to present, including the Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior for the Dominion in the Laurier cabinet; our local member W. F. Puffer, and several other prominent members of the Provincial Legislature.

Wild geese have started southward this week,—an indication that in the ordinary course of events a spell of wintry weather may be expected before long. So far central Alberta has entirely escaped the severe autumnal storms that are reported from the south, from the east and from the west. We have had a few flurries of moist snow and a number of frosty nights but nothing at all compared with the twelve inch snow fall reported in Montana and similar storms all over the northern states and east Canada, and in the mountains to the west. That readers at a distance may understand just how wild the fall has been here we will cite the fact that summer flowers such as pansies are on this date still blooming where they grew in the open doorway with no protection other than that furnished by a wire picket fence and buildings forty feet distant.

The Presbyterians ladies will hold a ten cent tea and sale of baking at the home of Mrs. David Gilmour, Barnett avenue, on Saturday, October 25.

"I came here from Iowa, and although I expect to try and make it pay out, there are lots of Americans here, and they are all dissatisfied. But when someone talks of reporting the true conditions here, most of them say, 'Don't say anything until you get rid of your land.' And we cannot do that at the price we paid for it."

We have nothing to say in defense of the land companies. They are not buying and selling for nothing. We do know, however, that any man who paid twenty-two dollars an acre for stony land on the prairies of Western Canada did not exercise much business ability. He can buy thousands of acres of good clay loam on which he cannot get a wheelbarrow load of stones from a quarter section, and at less than twenty-two dollars an acre. Because he was ignorant enough to buy without seeing, does not give proof that Western Canada's lands are stony and high in price.

Chronic Knockers

The Canadian West has but few chronic knockers. The fact is the country speaks for itself so plainly that the average individual even though he may have been unfortunate, does not dare to condemn soil or conditions. Thousands have come into Western Canada in the last quarter of a century without a dollar and in, a very few years were fairly well blessed with the wherewithal to enjoy the comforts of life. It has, therefore, come to be taken for granted that there is something wrong with the individual who tries to tell others that the country is no good.

A rather interesting letter appeared in a recent issue of a farm journal published south of the line; it was written by a man who claimed to have come from Iowa, and reads in part as follows:

"The land companies bring in people from the United States and change them from six to ten dollars per acre more than they could get the same kind of land for back in the United States. I paid twenty-two dollars per acre, and I could have got land just as good for fourteen dollars an acre."

"In some places the land is very stony. The stones are just under the surface, and one cannot see them easily, but when plowing is started the stones are very much in evidence. Then, too, the land companies tell the Americans they can raise flax on the new breaking. Most of them try it, and fail. I have seen a great deal sown in this way, but have never seen any cut."

"I came here from Iowa, and although I expect to try and make it pay out, there are lots of Americans here, and they are all dissatisfied. But when someone talks of reporting the true conditions here, most of them say, 'Don't say anything until you get rid of your land.' And we cannot do that at the price we paid for it."

"I would not advise anyone to leave Iowa or any good farming locality to come here, even if I do have land for sale. Many of the farmers here are in debt for more than they are worth."

We have nothing to say in defense of the land companies. They are not buying and selling for nothing. We do know, however, that any man who paid twenty-two dollars an acre for stony land on the prairies of Western Canada did not exercise much business ability. He can buy thousands of acres of good clay loam on which he cannot get a wheelbarrow load of stones from a quarter section, and at less than twenty-two dollars an acre. Because he was ignorant enough to buy without seeing, does not give proof that Western Canada's lands are stony and high in price.

He and his neighbors certainly were very unwise in leaving a good State like Iowa and paying such prices for stony land in the Canadian West. However, for one who was disappointed in his migration from Iowa or any other State there are scores who bless the day they came north.

A strange feature of the publication of the letter quoted above is that it appeared in the columns of a farm paper whose editor has visited the Canadian West. He knows that it is the song of a chronic kicker whose presence either in Iowa or in Western Canada will not help turn the wheels of progress. Evidently he thought such trash would help to stem the tide that annually makes its way to the Canadian prairies.

The Balkan Balance Sheet

Exactly a year has elapsed since the outbreak of hostilities in the Balkans, and a useful purpose will be served if an attempt be made to set down in black and white a debit and credit statement of a modern war.

As may be expected, debts due to a vastly greater proportion than credits in such a state.

The loss to the visitors in blood and treasure is incalculable.

Estimates that are probably low mark the cost of the one at 100,000 men killed outright, and of the other at $100,000,000. And the first item takes no account of survivors who are maimed and permanent invalids, in consequence non-producers contributing a charge in part or wholly upon their country. Nor again does this figure give more than a sinister hint of the misery and sorrow that necessarily lie in the wake of so heavy a toll on the manhood of the nations affected. In addition, the money cost of the war is sufficient to cripple the four kingdoms for many generations.

For all these tremendous sacrifices, what have they to show? Those that spent most have least. Montenegro, cheated of Scutari, and Bulgaria, robbed of Adrianople, have almost nothing. Servia comes off rather better and Greece, with the important seaport of Salonika and its hinterland, best of all, Roumania, uninvolved in actual warfare, takes a stretch of country bordering on the Black Sea, from Bulgaria.

But the huge deficit that is imposed, herein is further swollen by considerations, moral rather than material in nature, and yet involving material losses. What was won by the sword must be held by the sword. A bitter enemy has germinated between Greece and Bulgaria that sooner or later will be put to the arbitrament of war. The Bulgarian is a bad loser and a pertinacious hater. To achieve his ends, he is not above an alliance with the Turk, so only he may turn the tides of victory in his favor. The Greeks are, of course, thoroughly aware of this menace, and, to avert it, a nation permanently at arms is the heavy price of their present success.

What way soever we look at it, there can be no shadow of a doubt that the Balkan war has been the most disastrous event that has happened to the four kingdoms since any of them became a nation. Not a single one of them emerges from it satisfied with the present and secure for the future. Not a single one of them but, counting the cost today, does not in all likelihood bitterly regret its participation in that calamitous struggle. Indeed, the only good thing perceptible is the grim warning it affords to the rest of humanity, the powerful object lesson it gives to the armed camps of Europe.

On a far larger scale, as terrible an aftermath of horror and hate awaits them too, if they carry to a logical issue the preparations for war they indulge so recklessly. The puzzle is that, thoroughly well aware of this, they can still persist in what is neither more nor less than a crime of less humanity. The primeval passions of man are rigidly held in check under a civilized society; surely those of nations should be as severely discouraged.

World Grain Production

Much has been heard in late years of the great quantities of grain produced by Canada, the United States and the Argentine Republic, but it may come as a surprise to many people to learn that Russia far outstrips these countries in farm production. Russia's present productive area for cereals is, says an exchange, considerably larger than that of the United States and Canada combined. Russia has more land under wheat, rye, oats, potatoes and harvest grass than the Great Republic and the Great Dominion together, while Russia's crop area is more than ten times greater than Canada's. Russia's wonderful progress in agriculture is due to well-defined causes, among which may first be enumerated the peace of the country since 1906; secondly, their increased production of mineral fertilizers, the consumption of which has increased from 365,461 tons in 1908 to about 1,000,000 tons in 1912; thirdly, the great increase in the imports and home manufacture of agricultural machinery; fourthly, the increase in the number of agricultural societies, which now number about 1,000, and last, but not least, the increased agricultural staff.

The latter reached last year a total of 5,185, composed of specialists and instructors supported by government or public funds.

Appalling Disaster

London, Oct. 13.—The latest accounts of the disaster to the steamship Volturno, burned and abandoned in mid-ocean on Friday morning, confirm the report that the loss of life will be limited to about one hundred and thirty-six. The Carmania, first of the rescuing ships to reach the burning steamer, arrived off Queenstown this morning, but owing to the gale proceeded direct to Fishguard, where she is due to arrive at 11 a.m.

An Important Study

Almost every movement today tends toward freeing the hands which prejudice has bound.

In one important matter, the education of the young in matters of sex hygiene, great forward strides are being made.

The proposal in Chicago to give instruction to boys and girls in the high schools on this subject of "personal purity" is really a proposal to substitute correct moral teaching on a vital subject that is often neither correct nor moral.

It is admittedly an experiment, and it will need discretion on the part of the men and women who give the lessons, but if a reasonable scheme of instruction is thought out and pursued, this should be the beginning of a great reform.

So closely is this subject connected with that of marriage that earnest church workers, feeling convinced of the vast importance of this move for the promotion of "personal purity," regard the promotion of marriages between suitable persons as a proper work for clergymen.

A clergymen expresses his views on this subject, through the New York Sun, as follows:

"If a young man comes to me and expresses a desire to make the acquaintance of a young woman in the church I will personally introduce him, provided the girl is willing, and provided further that he can give me absolute assurance of good moral character and honesty of purpose. In my opinion the most important question of our present civilization is that sex in the race fails in the sex relation; it will fail in every other relation."

"I am not a pessimist. I believe in the law of the survival of the fittest. Eventually we are going to get things right. Wrong things cannot be perpetuated. The present awakening of interest in eugenics, dealing with cause rather than effect, is a hopeful sign.

"None too soon we are beginning to apply scientific methods to the most vital and delicate problems of life. Love, courtship and marriage have too long been regarded as merely sentimental and accidental matters. I would not do away with sentiment, but sentiment must not shut its eyes against the light of science. Romance and science need to become intimate companions. Cupid should familiarize himself with the facts of science.

"The science of love, the science of courtship, the science of marriage, are terms which need to be better understood. We need a revival of the old ideals of love, marriage, home and children in the light of modern science.

"There are some considerations which have led me to become interested in the problem of matrimony. I believe the church should be concerned with everything that affects human life. This is why I am speaking from my pulpit on such subjects as 'How to Get a Husband and Keep Him,' and 'How to Get a Wife and Keep Her.'

The Lacombe Guardian

F. H. SCHOOLEY, PROPRIETOR

HAS COME INTO THE OPEN

When Mr. Borden made his campaign in 1911 he had not hatched his still-born emergency. He had been rushed into his unholy alliance with the Nationalists with the sole idea of defeating Laurier at any cost, with a Micawber-like confidence that something would turn up later by means of which he could sneak out of the effects of this criminal compact. The British Admiralty helped him to this solution. Mr. Borden went to England and got Winston Churchill to supply him with some good rotund sentences. He conceived the "Emergency" on the spot; started to imagine red ink nightmares of thunder and lightning raging on the horizon and storms which threatened to break up the Empire with fury and disaster. Proudly he brought back his hybrid infant and presented it to the country with a demand for $35,000,000.

Now Mr. Borden must be judged, not by his promises of 1911, but by his utter failure of performance during two years. He must be judged by his secret knowledge of the infamous Nationalist alliance and his willingness to win office by deliberate deception. He must be judged by his breach of the Nationalist pledges. He must be judged by his bogus emergency which has just been completely exploded by the friendly tariff relations between England and Germany and the complete break-up of the British anti-German fleet in the North Sea. He must be judged by his neglect to reduce the tariff so as to give some relief to the consumers, suffering by the high cost of living; he must be judged by the inordinate extravagance of his administration, which increases the public debt in spite of the greatest revenues on record; he must be judged by his refusal to give the promised Civil Service reform, and by his acquiescence in the most relentless campaign for the dismissal of all Liberals in the public service that Canada has ever seen. He must be judged by his systematic determination to force Parliament to rob the Provinces of their control of highways and to retain to himself the handling of the money to be provided under the Highways Aid Bill. He must be judged by his refusal to fulfill his promise of Senate reform and the fact that he has not only hastened to fill every Senate vacancy with Tories, but is planning to increase the representation in the Senate by nearly a dozen so as to get more of his party supporters in the Red Chamber. He must be judged by the unfair manner in which he dragged Parliament into adopting the "gag" closure rules.

It is useless to continue further. On whatever ground of public policy or public virtue, the Borden Government may be judged it must be found wanting.

WILL NOT SEND BLONDIN

Mr. Borden should send his friend Blondin, the Nationalist whom he made Deputy Speaker of Parliament, to assist in the Tory campaign in East Middlesex. It would prove of interest to the people there to meet a French-Canadian Nationalist supporter of Mr. Borden's. Mr. Blondin would greatly interest them if he would say as he did to the people of St. Louis de Blandford on October 21st, 1910, "You are intimidating the people and adding that we must contribute always and everywhere to the defence of that protector of our constitutional liberty; but we will not be made to forget that in 1837 it was necessary to bore holes in it (the Union Jack) in order to breathe the atmosphere of liberty. The English have never done anything for the French Canadians. We do not owe them anything. French Canadians have nothing to care about the opinion of the other Provinces upon this Naval Question."

That speech was made during the Nationalist campaign which was secretly endorsed by Mr. Borden and paid for out of the Conservative election chest. It should prove interesting in East Middlesex.

WHO IS NOT TELLING THE TRUTH?

Canadian Associated Press Dispatch, October 22nd, 1912; this despatch appeared throughout the country as a report of a speech made by Sir Rodolph Forget in the Richelieu by-election. The report was not denied. In it Sir Rodolph Forget is quoted as saying: "I pledge my word of honor that if you elect Mr. Morgan on Thursday the Marine Railway will be voted during the Parliamentary session which will open next month. And if the government does not keep the promise which was made to me in writing I will ask Mr. Morgan to resign and I know he will do so."

The report continued, "Sir Rodolph declared he had seen Hon. Mr. Rogers and that the Minister had given him a written promise binding the Government." Hansard report of Parliamentary proceedings, December 4th, 1912:

SOREL MARINE RAILWAY.

Mr. Lemieux:

1. Has any promise, written or verbal, been made of late by the Prime Minister, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries or the Minister of Public Works, that a marine railway would be subsidized or built by the Government at Sorel, county of Richelieu?

2. If so, at what date, and to whom was such a promise made? Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden:

"There has been no promise, either written or verbal, with respect to the matter alluded to made by the members of the Government who are mentioned in this question."

THEY PROTEST TOO MUCH

As in Canada, as in the United States the great manufacturing interests maintain press bureaus supported for the sole purpose of tainting the news so as to continually present arguments in favor of high tariff and belittling this tax could possibly mean a reduction in the cost of living. Naturally this concocted material attempt to wipe out even the name of the great Liberal leader created much amusement, and the government was unmercifully satirized in the press.

Then Hon. Mr. Rogers tried to retrieve his blunder, with his customary declaration that it was all a lie concocted by the wicked Liberal newspapers. He said they were "false and lying statements," and added "When they cry and attempt to justify their tears by the statement that I have out through an order-in-council changing the name of 'Sir Wilfrid' on a government dredge to 'P.W.D. No. 117' they make a statement that is a deliberate lie and false in every particular."

The Canada Gazette of September 13th last, contained the following official government notice:

"Public notice is hereby given that under the provisions of Section 27 of the Canada Shipping Act, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has granted permission to change the name of the dredge Sir Wilfrid of the port of Toronto, Ont., official Number 112, 186, to that of P. W. D. 117."

P. W. D. stands for Public Works Department. Hon. Robert Rogers is Minister of Public Works. Either the Government's official Gazette or Hon. Robert Rogers has made "a statement that is a deliberate lie and false in every particular." The publication of this notice should not have been overlooked.

ANOTHER BLUFF ENDED

After making a bluff at trying to secure lower Atlantic freight rates the government has announced that it can do nothing in this regard. This is followed by suggestions in the British press that if Canada really wants lower ocean freight rates she could secure them by the simple expedient of reducing the tariff against England on such goods as structural iron, steel rails, locomotives, tin, cement and coal. The simple minded English people point out that this reduction or canceling the duty on these articles would lead to a great increase in trade, which would ensure cargoes both ways, with a natural willingness of ship-owners to charge lower rates than now, when the traffic is more one-sided. They even point out that Canada's great grain growing rival, Argentina, has secured much reduced freight rates by this expedient.

It will be interesting to watch the unanimity with which the Borden ministers will refrain from considering this. It would only benefit the producer, the consumer and shipper, but might reduce the profits of their friends, "the Interests." The shipper, the producer and consumer will not get much consideration.

THEY PROTEST TOO MUCH

asked to believe that this reduction in prices with its cut in profits taken out of the people cannot possibly mean any reduction in cost to the people. Carlyle's "veriest schoolboy" could see the absurdity of such an argument. Yet that is the kind of fuation that is being urged by Tory orators and newspapers in reply to the demands of the Liberals for wider markets.

MUST BEEF BECOME PROHIBITIVE

In connection with the high cost of living, there is no topic which is being so much discussed throughout the continent at the present time as the shortage of beef. The Meat Packers' Convention in Chicago laid the blame at the door of the farmers, saying that unless they raised more live stock, a meat famine would result. That the farmers are paying less and less attention to raising beef, despite the rising prices, is a contention borne out by the latest statistics of the American Government. These show that since the beginning of 1907 the number of beef cattle in the United States has decreased from 51,505,000 to 30,030,000, and the number of sheep from 53,240,000 to 51,480,000, while in the same period the population of the country has increased by 10,000,000. Thus the supply has been diminishing even more rapidly than the demand has been increasing.

The excuse which is generally put forward is that the cutting up of the vast cattle ranges of the West into small farms is rapidly killing the stock-raising industry, and that therefore we must expect that beef cattle will become less and less plentiful in proportion to the population. In fact, some go so far as to say that if the great cattle ranges that do exist at the present time were split up into smaller holdings, it would do possibly more than anything else to encourage cattle raising. The New York Commercial, discussing the point, says:

"Many who should be well able to judge, maintain that the division of the ranges into small farms has caused a steady increase in the supply of American cattle, but the truth of this statement is disputed by some of the large ranch owners of Texas, who find that the industry in their State was never in a more prosperous condition than it is at present. One Texan authority on the subject says that the 'vest-pocket ranchmen,' as he calls them, are now raising more cattle to the acre than ever before in the history of that part of the country, and they can do this because they can put up the forage in silos, which he thinks is the solution of the cattle problem. On the one hand, we have the meat packers predicting that the supply of cattle will soon be insufficient to feed the people of this country, and on the other hand we have the statements from cattle raisers themselves, especially in Texas, that the Western farmer will produce plenty of live stock if he can get a fair share of the price which the ultimate consumer pays."

In the development of the stock raising industry which is going on in Texas lies, it seems to us, the practical solution of the meat problem. It is useless to look with regret on the passing of the great cattle ranges of the West. Under modern conditions they are a most wasteful way of utilizing land. What we have to do is to encourage the small farmer to devote more attention to cattle raising. That he can raise far more cattle to the acre than the ranchers, and with less risk of loss through disease and accident, is indisputable. This problem is one of the most serious before both Canada and the United States, and it is to be hoped our Government will give it the serious attention it deserves. There is no need whatever for beef to become prohibitive in price.

THE NEW U. S. TARIFF AND OUR WHEAT

The new United States tariff, which President Wilson spoke of, in signing it last Friday night, as designed "to set the business of the country free from those conditions which have made monopoly not only possible, but, in a sense, easy and natural," will have important results not only in the United States but in this country as well. It will soon more than ever make it evident that the ideas, set forth so strenuously by some people in this country two years ago to the effect that it was not only possible, but Imperially desirable, not to say vitally necessary in the maintenance of British connection, that the Canadian people should hold themselves religiously aloof from "truck or trade" with the neighboring people with whom we share the possession of this continent, are ideas which are false.

The multitudinous and complex relationships of trade and intercourse between the two countries are actualities which must be taken into account. We Canadians cannot, if we could, cut ourselves off, as with a Chinese wall, from the rest of the continent to which we belong. Inevitably such legislation in the United States as the new tariff now in operation is destined to have results of very great importance here in Canada.

The coming into operation of the new tariff in the United States has created a difficult situation for the Borden Government. There is only one way in which the Borden Government can meet the situation effectively, and that is to take action forthwith to secure the free entrance of Canadian wheat into the United States. Mr. Borden and his colleagues, if they are wise, will do this without delay, eating their words of two years ago about the necessity of saving our Canadian wheat from contamination with the wheat grown in the United States, thereby saving Canada to the Empire and incidentally also saving the railway tracks between Western Canada and Eastern Canada from becoming mere streaks of rust overgrown with grass.

The only thing for Mr. Borden and his colleagues to do now is to forget all that sort of talk and meet the situation by introducing and carrying through the Dominion Parliament the necessary tariff legislation which will secure for the wheat grown in this country entry free of duty into the country to the south.

PURE FOOD EXPOSITION

Probably the biggest event of its kind ever staged in the Canadian West will be the Pure Food and Fashion Exhibition which will be held in Calgary from October 18th to 28th, inclusive.

The handsome new horse show building at Victoria Park has been secured for this great event, and this alone is a sign that the display of Pure Foods and Fashions will eclipse anything of its kind ever attempted in Western Canada.

Manager Cheeseman, the man behind the gun in this great undertaking, has had several years experience in conducting Pure Food Expositions in the middle west and south. He is also head of the Art Decorating Company of Calgary, and his training in this line of work will be of great value in making the Pure Food Show attractive.

As well as having secured all of the leading manufacturers in the Dominion to make exhibits of their products, Manager Cheeseman has made arrangements with the Manitoba Government to have their wonderful tubercular exhibit shown at this exposition. This exhibit, as well as showing the different stages of this dread disease, due in a great measure to the uses of impure foods, will point out why people should be careful in the selection of what they eat and wear.

This Pure Food Exposition will be a blessing to many households. The problems of the home will be demonstrated explained by those who know. There will be cooking competitions—an educational course in good living. Interspersed with these object lessons, there will be staged twice daily a vaudeville show of the best, as well as a midway of several of the best shows obtainable.

Excursion rates will be in force on all railroads. Make your plans early to attend the Pure Food and Fashion Exposition and don't forget the dates—October 18th to 28th, inclusive.

WE LEAD THE WORLD IN HIGH COST OF LIVING

There are two sides to Canada being first of the world's civilized nations in high cost of living. There are those who will insist that this is a sure sign of coming trouble and that we are too extravagant and wasteful. On the other hand, there is a bright side to the situation in the fact that a country always lives as well as it can afford, and a nation that is living highest must naturally be able to afford it and is therefore making money faster than any other nation and is more prosperous. The Chinese and Japanese can live cheaper than the rest of the world because they have to. They have become used to cheap living because it has been forced upon them for centuries. European countries live according to their density of population and producing power—the more the average family earns, the higher the national standard of living. Hence, when some reformer cites statistics to prove that Canada's living expenses are higher than any other country and the Dominion is sure to go to the bow-wows unless we quit eating anything but oatmeal and wheat cakes and wearing anything more expensive than overalls, we should give him the horse laugh. Everybody lives as well as he can afford; that's what money is earned for.

If Canada is living high the country can afford it; otherwise we should raise more of the things we buy.

LOVE AND PHILOSOPHY.

FAIR mistress, I would fain invite
A poem to your lovely eyebrows,
But that I fear my ringing might Offend one who is such a neighbor.
I have said that I can't deny—
Never I mean to be so passive,
But all in vain will loves a sigh,
For love, you say, is out of fashion.

You tell me to forget your sex
To live like a true woman,
You offer me affection (this),
As one to just another human.

"It's hard to love—at least for me—
And not appear absurd or comic;
The world is full of such things that she Is but a unit among.

Beloved unit epithet!
I'm bluer than the skies above you,
And as the grass beneath I'm green;

Forget the wisdom of the schools,
Love this philosophy I've parroted.
Come, let us be a brace of fools
And go and claimfully get married!

—Chicago Daily News.

Only a Difference in the Kind.

A certain famous physician during the time of a Frenchman class is natural philosophy. He observed tall, lanky youth in the rear seat, his head in a recumbent position, his body in a lengthened pose, his eyes half closed and his legs extended far out. He was either asleep or about to lose consciousness.

"Mr. Blank," said the scientist, "you may rectify."

The freshman opened his eyes slowly.
He did not change his somnolent pose.

"Mr. Blank, what is work?"

"Everything is work," was the driving reply.

"What! Everything is work?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then it I would like the elbow to believe that the desk is work."

"Yes, sir," replied the youth wearily,

"woodwork."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Had the Habit.

The man is sitting at a desk, looking down at a book or paper he is holding in his hands. He appears to be reading or studying intently.

"So's he going to have her butcher will sit up and die?"
"Yes; she got the habit while he was alive"—Portland Oregonian.

Tongue Twister.

We are all familiar with the way which the tongue will sometimes twist when we speak English language.
Every one who has ever heard the mutilation caused by this perverse and "unruly member" will appreciate this young woman's feelings.

A young woman had received a card to a church wedding, and as she entered the room where the English language was being used, she was considerably confused as to the location of the seat her card indicated.
She had been previously told that her seat was in the same pew as a family named Cobb, strangers to her, however. Touching a gentle gentleman on the arm, she sweetly inquired:
"Can you tell me where occupies this pew?"—Deuter Reptiles.

Home Manners.

Mr. Pester—Mr. Pleasanton has such delightfully agreeable manners. I suppose he acquired them while living at home.

"Pester—Eddy! Men as a general rule seem to regard home as a place where they don't have to be polite.—Boston Record.

UNSIGHTLY PIMPLES
CAME ON FACE

Sores Spread Until Face Was Covered, So Itchy Could Not Resist Scratching, Cured Entirely in About Two Weeks by Cuticura
Soap and Ointment.

Clarendon, Ontario—"My trouble started with some breaking out on the face. They came as pimplies and were ugly. Those sores seemed to keep spreading until my face was covered with them. At that time I could not resist scratching them.
After trying two or three different salves that did not stop the sores breaking out, I tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.
I found that they cured me entirely of the sores in about two weeks."

LEGS BURNED AND ITCHED

Souls West, P. E. Island—"My little girl, aged four years, was troubled with a jalling rash on her legs and feet. In a dry, sandy soil there little pimplies and after a few days it looked like little pimples with a white top on them. Her legs burned and ached very much and she was very restless.
She was very cross and frequently used to scratch and make sores when I was not watching her. I had to leave her stockings off of her as they were irritated for legs.
I tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I found that they cured me

PRESIDENT
SUSPENDER
NONE SO EASY

Doubtless Doubtless

A vaudeville costumier was "high-beating up" his dressing room, when a layman, who happened to open the doorway, stopped short, across the threshold and stood spellbound, watching the performer, who was apparently held in a knot on top of his trunk.

Notting the look of consternation on the face of the unknown visitor, he resigned to have some fun at his expense the costumier assumed a look of deepest anguish and groaned weakly:

"By gravy, that's the last time I'll ever eat cucumbers for supper!"

Ingratitude.

"I helped an intoxicated man out of the gutter several weeks ago and put him aboard a ship to America."

"The other day he wrote to the police asking them to find my address."

"Ab, I see. He wants to force $10-00 on you."

"No; he says he thinks I must have pinched his watch?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Need for Haste.

The Doctor—Mrs. Brown has sent me to go and see her boy, and I must go at once."

"What's the matter with the boy?"

The Doctor—I don't know, but Mrs.
Brown has a book on "What to do before the doctor comes," and I must hurry up before she does it.—New York Globe.

Feared the Other.

The man of great financial prominence had met with an accident.

"We'll have to prove," said the doctor.

Just at that moment the man recovered consciousness and exclaimed:

"It's a surgical operation go ahead, but if another investigation give me an anesthetic!"—Washington Star.

The Fatal Day Was Near.

who was dressing for the wedding.
"Never mind, mamma," said she sweetly, "they are his last wishes."—

New Form of Music.

He was a fellow of delicate organism. When he heard a sound which seemed to him like a rustle of his feet and rushed from the room or, if it happened to be on the ground floor, from the window and landed in the flower garden.

Having been invited from the city to the country, he, found himself surrounded every day by a family who had not the faintest elemental idea of how to take soap. He stood two days, his fingers never ceasing, in utter moment to rebellion. Finally the oldest daughter of the house confided to him her objection to her father's habit of eating soap in a loud manner.

The nervous visitor, who thought the father didn't have much on the daughter in this respect, exclaimed:

"Look! eating of soap! He doesn't eat it; he whistles it!"—Opular Magazine.

Chicken and Chicken Pie.

A hungry customer seated himself at a table in a quick lunch restaurant and ordered a chicken pie. When he arrived he raised the lid and sat gazing at the contents intently for awhile.

Finally he called the waiter.

"Look here, Sam," he said, "what did I order?"

"Chicken pie, sir."

"And what have you brought me?"

"Chicken pie, sir, you black rascal!"

The customer retorted. "Chicken pie?

Why, there's not a piece of chicken in it and never was."

"Dat's all right, boss. Dey ain't no chicken in it."

"Then why do you call it chicken pie? I never heard such a thing."

"Dat's all right, boss. Dat's all right."

"Don't eat it, you black rascal."

"I can save you about 50 per cent.
of her present cost to you."

CHEAPER THAN GASOLINE

British Discovery Will Cut the Price for Motor Spirit One-third

The joint committee appointed by the Royal Automobile Club, the Automobile Association and the Society of Motor Manufacturers to find an efficient substitute for gasoline has discovered a process which it is said will produce 40,000 gallons of motor spirit annually without in any way disturbing the country's mineral resources. It involves the utilization of by-products of coal hitherto unsuitable for motor fuel.

Experts have made full investigation, and have decided that a full-sized commercial plant is feasible, and the spirit can be sold for not more than 25c. a gallon, probably for less.

The secretary of the committee shows that there is one gallon of motor spirit in Great Britain is about 100,000,000 gallons and that the present price of gasoline is 42 cents a gallon.

St. Joseph, Lewis, July 14, 1903.
Munro, Linton Co., Linton, Ont.

Gentlemen—I was much pleased by your letter last May and after using various preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black and jet black and I lay in bed for a fortnight and could not move. After using the bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, as that I could start on the road.

JOS. DUBES, +
Commercial Traveler.

Brown is a very good fellow, but then he has one bad habit: that of reaching home in the small hours of the morning. This is the last week Mrs. Brown hit upon him. If she could not persuade him out of the habit, perhaps she could. She did, however, and the next night he was confronted by a tall white-throated figure, which glided up to him.

Wh—wh—what's that? gasped poor Brown. I am the family ghost! replied a voice.

Brown "gave a sigh of relief. Great Scott!" he gasped. How you frightened me. I thought it was the missus.

Dolly (who has just viewed art exhibition)—I could look at nothing but Duber's picture.

Choly—I tell Duber. He will be pleased.

Dolly—Yes; there was such a crowd in front of all the others.

Why Fis: Yawn

A scientist has discovered that fish yawn.

Well, I wouldn't be at all surprised if some of the big ones had got away without putting them teeth into exaggerated tales the fisherman tell.

Leisure is a very pleasant garment to look at, but a very bad one to wear.

What's this jar of cream cheese doing on my desk?

I think the jar belonged on your desk. Gee whiz! I must have spread the sandwiches last night with library paste.

The ever popular Williams Jubilee Singers are booked for Lacombe on November 5.

Manager Shilleto of the Comet Theater, wishes to announce to his patrons that he has secured Geo. Howard and his excellent company in Wm. Crane's great success, "David Harum," for one night only, Monday, October 27.

The story of David Harum is so well known that it needs no introduction to the theater goers of Lacombe. Both Mr. Crane and Mr. Howard have presented this play to the public of the United States, and the unanimous opinion of the dramatic critics has been in favor of Mr. Howard. He brings to the part not only the deep pathos of which Mr. Crane is capable, but also the humor of the real David Harum, which so well fits Mr. Howard's infinite style of comedy.

David Harum will drive away the blues and leave you laughing for a week over his quaint philosophy. Lacombe is surely in for a treat and will turn out en masse to welcome such a splendid company presenting this masterpiece of wholesomeness. Seats on sale at the theater commencing Monday, the 20th, at 10 a.m.

BIRTHS

Collier—At Iowalta, on Wednesday, October 8, to Mr. and Mrs. D. Collier, a son.

Watson—At Lacombe, on Sunday, October 12, to Mr. and Mrs. James Watson, a son.

A Present for the Old Folks

Christmas Spectacles

Why Not?

Every family buys a present for the old folks. Spectacles are practical and useful, not the kind of gift which is laid by in a few days.

You can present them with the new glasses, then they can drop in any time they like and have the glass changed to suit them.

Or we have a handsome certificate good for one pair of glasses and testing the eyes. You can present this and we will fit the glasses to suit, on demand.
